Cam Newton

Inherited 1 channel · 3 shows · 3 audiences — split into a 3-channel network, each packaged for its own algorithm.

How we launch from 0.

We call it "The Pillow." Prime the channel with content so the algorithm knows you and knows your audience. Pack a launch-week stockpile, then fire content out of a machine gun.

01 PRIME

fluff the pillow

Prime the channel with a few weeks of content in the run-up to launch.

02 PACK

stockpile the drop

Bank a multi-week library of episodes and begin a steady, consistent rollout — followed by copious supplementary content.

03 POUND

machine-gun output

Multi-format daily releases across all social channels.

Jan '25 launch

19.9M YT views in 2025

5 months of priming, then a packed launch window in June-July. The algorithm tipped — single month went from 240K to 7.7M views.

3 launches · 3 sports · 3 KPI clears · $0 paid spend ▶ Same playbook every time.

The career is just beginning when you walk off the field.

RETIRED PUNTER → 9-FIGURE MEDIA BIZ → ESPN DEAL. CHANNEL STILL COMPOUNDING DAILY.

HOF TIGHT END → TWO TOP-20 PODCASTS → OWNS HIS AUDIENCE. TWO SHOWS, ONE CULTURAL RESET.

QUIET VETERAN → MOST-WATCHED BASKETBALL VOICE ON YOUTUBE. THE CHANNEL IS THE SECOND CAREER.

Athletes own their voices and are more in control of their stories than ever. Networks now chase THEM — instead of athletes fighting for the few TV slots available.

▶ STANDALONE SaaS Each tool can ship on its own subscription — the YouTube referral pipeline doesn't have to wait for a studio slot to open up.

Not every athlete should run the same playbook.

Ranked by monetization potential — map talent to format, then build the channel around how their audience actually wants to consume them.

$ RANK	PATH	BEST FOR	WHAT IT BUILDS	CHANNEL EXAMPLES
#1 	 Podcast	Personality-forward athletes	Sponsors, brand deals, IP	Shannon Sharpe · Cam Newton · Pat McAfee
#2 	 Squad / Group	Teammates, friend groups	Massive reach, IP plays	Dude Perfect · Sidemen · 2HYPE · AMP · NELK
#3 	 Sport-specific	Niche-skill athletes	Loyal subs, coaching pipeline, sport sponsors	Deestroying · Jesser
#4	 Gaming Stream /	Gen Z athletes	Live crossover, content monetization	Neymar Jr. · De'Aaron Fox · JuJu · Josh Hart
#5	 Vlog / Day-in-life	Lifestyle-forward athletes	Family brand, lifestyle deals	Travis Hunter · Olivia Dunne · Bronny James
 HEADS UP Gaming requires real commitment . Weekly streaming minimum, pre-planned matchups, content strategy. Don't sign up unless the talent will actually do the reps.

Two waves we want to support.

Both have the audience. Both have the demand. Neither has the infrastructure — yet.

Female_Athletes.exe

WAVE 01

FEMALE ATHLETES

AUDIENCE CONNECTION • UNTAPPED MONETIZATION

► Audience connection runs deep.

Female fan connection to women's sports is dramatically higher than the men's side — audiences want story, depth, and personality.

► Players want to create.

Less media-trained and more willing to show real personality on camera.

► Growth needs creators.

The next chapter of women's sports gets built on athletes' own platforms — not waiting on the league feed.

► Bigger than monetization.

This is how the sport itself grows.

1st

mover advantage

$$$

brand category wide open

► RECEIPT

Our women's volleyball case study confirmed the signal — the Austin LOVB roster had more social media creators than the men's basketball, G League, and soccer rosters combined.

LA_2028.exe

WAVE 02

OLYMPIC RUNWAY

LA 2028 • 12-MONTH RAMP MINIMUM

► Two weeks, then silence.

The Olympics own the conversation for two weeks — then those sports vanish from broadcast for four years.

► YouTube is built for niche.

Almost every Olympic sport could sustain a creator generating millions of views per video.

► 12-month ramp minimum.

Athletes onboarded now are the ones who tell the 2028 story natively.

► Mind the 44-month gap.

Beyond brand deals — this is how those sports stay alive between Games.

► THE GAP

Olympians own global attention every four years, then disappear. We give them a year-round audience — and give their sport a year-round home.
